

STUDENT WRITERS WANTED!

Be a part of history in the making! Encore Stage & Studio will celebrate the diversity of the food and cultures that thrive on Columbia Pike with a new student-devised production. Students grades 8 and older are invited to join Encore to shine a light on rarely heard stories as a student writer.

What's in it for YOU!

- Your name as a writer in Encore's student-devised production that will be presented in March 2025
- Creative sessions with professional directors and artists
- Opportunity to research and learn about the food culture along Columbia Pike
- Participate through site visits, interviews and research utilizing the Center for Local History

About Flip the Script

This National Endowment for the Arts-funded program takes on its third production with Flip the Script: Foodways of Arlington, a Cultural Celebration.

This inspiring production will give a diverse group of students the free opportunity to devise and perform a theatrical piece on food traditions and stories of three distinct cultures in the global community of Arlington VA. History comes alive for students through research, engagement with community leaders, creative process workshops, and community talkbacks after performances.

Creative sessions are Mondays, April 1 - May 20 | 5:30 - 8:00 pm at Encore's Administrative Offices (4500 Langston Blvd. Arlington, VA 22207).

How to Apply

Complete the online application form and include an approximately 500 word writing sample. Apply by March 15 for best consideration.
